NGP Backs OWL in New Oilfield Water Platform, Acquires New Mexico Portfolio

Dallas (June 19, 2014) – The management team of Oilfield Water Logistics, LLC (OWL) has partnered with NGP Natural Resources X, L.P. and NGP Energy Technology Partners II, L.P. as equity sponsors. OWL is a new company formed to acquire, develop, and manage water-related and other oilfield fluids infrastructure and services in the energy industry.

“We are excited to partner with NGP and form OWL to consolidate best-in-class oilfield water operations and provide dependable solutions for energy companies on a national scale. NGP brings significant capital, expertise and relationships to help establish OWL as an industry leader,” says Chris Cooper, CEO. Cooper is joined by a seasoned management team at OWL, including Nevin Bannister, Roger Johnson and Matt Thiel.

In May, OWL acquired an initial portfolio of saltwater disposal wells and entered into exclusive surface use agreements in New Mexico to serve oil and gas producers in the Permian Basin, where OWL is actively seeking additional investment and acquisition opportunities. These properties and relationships create a network of water infrastructure across southeast New Mexico for companies active in plays such as the Bone Spring and others.
